The electric in the south end of the city were put out of commission last night when wires got crossed on South Main street and burned out the cut-off on a pole near the City Hall corner. There was a brilliant illumination of the corner for a time, and the big crowd that was listening to the band concert rushed to the scene expecting to see further trouble but was disappointed as the fire went out when the cut-off was burned off. Nine street lights in the south part of the city were temporarily useless.
